5 days The Great Wildebeest Calving -Ngorongoro Conservation Area Safari Tanzania This safari includes 2 game drives in Ndotu Area and one in Tarangire National Park, canoeing on Lake Manyara and visit Masai Boma.

Every year between November and December the Wildebeests Migration herds after returning to Serengeti from the Masai Mara, pass along the Central Serengeti and cross over to Ndotu plains area, where the begins breeding season goes on for a period between December through the month of March/April.

Every year in roughly a million wildebeest gather on the short grass plains of the Southern Serengeti to give birth. Calving of Wildebeest takes place only once a year and this phenomenal spectacle should not be missed.

The breeding and calving season you can see literally tens of thousands of young wildebeests, which are born by the end of the season with hundreds if not thousands, daily. The calving season sees the area buzzing with wildlife activity like many other animals, the predators and scavengers alike engage in a rare feast of easily attainable placentas and poor young ones that stray from their mothers. Many other big game animals follow the migration herds making Ndotu a place where you can observe an amazing spectacle is quite incomparable to any other wildlife phenomenon across the continent. It is the only wildlife show of its kind where safari goers witness wildebeest migrate clockwise within the Serengeti ecosystem as the season change from a characteristic rainy season at the end of the year to a dry spell at the
